And finally, here are the weird stem-changing verbs that don't quite fit into the above categories. The verb oler (“to smell” – either to smell an object, such as a flower, or to emit an odour). This might look like a o to ue stem-changing verb, but when the stem changes, you must add an “h” to the beginning:

Huelo	I Smell
Hueles	You Smell
Huele	He/she/it Smells
Olemos	We Smell
Oléis	You (pl.) Smell
Huelen	They Smell

(Remember that an “h” in Spanish is always silent, so this extra letter doesn't have any effect on the pronunciation.) the verb jugar. It's the only example of a verb whose stem changes from u to ue:

Juego	I Play
Juegas	You (s.) Play
Juega	He/she/it Plays
Jugamos	We Play
Jugáis	You (pl.) Play
Juegan	They Play
